

Jackson County, its citizens and business owners, and the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians have come together to develop the US 441 Small Area Plan. The focus for this planning process is sustainable development — measured by environmental stewardship, economic prosperity, and the preservation of rural areas and scenic natural surroundings — that reflects the community’s unique character and local values. The success of this planning process will be defined by its implementation, and we charge our elected officials with making the document’s core vision a reality.
